Speaker information

Amy Burnett, Nutty Amber Videos

How to use video to improve your business

Back in her mid-twenties, Amy decided to leave her role in Retail Account Management and follow her dream of studying photography. After spending 3 years as a student in London, she spent some time working in various roles, as a photographers assistant, at a photography agency and also doing her own photography work. She then moved to Hertfordshire, became a Mum and set up a successful wedding and portrait photography business.

Eight years on, having spent some time dabbling with video and completely falling in love with it, she made the bold move of calling time on photography and set up Nutty Amber Videos. Over the last 3 years, she has learnt how powerful video can be for businesses of all sizes and she thrives on helping business owners tell their story, stand out from the crowd and connect with their audience. Amy creates professional videos for businesses and organisations but also runs workshops and bespoke training sessions to empower business owners to create their own smartphone video content for social media.
